

Mountain Geology

CONTENTS

	Page
P. K. Sims and H. J. Stein	183–204	Tectonic evolution of the Proterozoic Colorado province, Southern Rocky Mountains: A summary and appraisal
D. S. Stone	205–235	New interpretations of the Piney Creek thrust and associated Granite Ridge tear fault, northeastern Big Horn Mountains, Wyoming
E. C. Beutner and S. P. DiBenedetto	237–245	The Blacktail thrust-fold, Crandall Conglomerate, and Heart Mountain detachment fault, northwestern Wyoming
P. Higgins	247–280	A Wyoming succession of Paleocene mammal-bearing localities bracketing the boundary between the Torrejonian and Tiffanian North American Land Mammal “Ages”
A. W. Snoke	283–287	Nelson Horatio Darton (1865–1948): The quintessential reconnaissance geologist of the Rocky Mountains and Great Plains

UNIVERSITY OF WYOMING